AUTO SERVICE TO CRAB ORCHARD.

Mr. J. S. Haselden's auto will carry parties of seven or more to Crab Orchard every Friday and Saturday night; for $1.00 for the round trip.

MARRIED SIXTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Anderson, of this city, are enjoying the enviable record of sixty years of matrimonial bliss, which they celebrated on their anniversary, last Monday, July 6th. These good people are enjoying the best of health and are receiving the congratulations and best wishes of their many friends in wishing them many more years of happiness in which the Record heartily joins.

SCHOOL BOOK QUESTION DECIDED.

The question as to what books shall be used in the public schools of the state during the coming school term has been decided and they will be obtainable by the first Monday in August, at which time the schools of the county will begin their 1914 session.

OFF FOR THE TALL TIMBERS.

Dr. W. M. Elliott and C. W. Anderson left this morning in the Doctors' handsome touring car, for the home of Mr. J. S. Bowman, in Lewis county, for a stay of several days. We are informed that Dr. Elliott goes primarily for the purpose of analyzing the famous health giving waters of the Bowman Springs, with the intention of erecting a private sanatorium for his patients. The genial Doctor is enjoying a well earned and lucrative practice and is always on the lookout for the comfort of his patients and friends.

GRADED SCHOOL POSITION DEFEATED.

The good people of the Buckeye section of the county do not take kindly to the Consolidated School just at this time, as was indicated by an election held in the district on last Saturday to take the sense of the voters on the question of furnishing wagons for transporting the children from the remote portions of the district to and from the proposed school. There were 48 votes for the proposition and 56 against it, a two thirds majority being required in order to carry it. The proposition is tabled at least for the present.

DROUGHT GROWING ALARMING.

The drought existing throughout the Bluegrass section is assuming a serious aspect, and unless rain comes at an early date to the relief of the stricken district, the monetary loss will be incalculable. Just at present tobacco is suffering considerably, while meadows and oats will be cut short for the lack of sufficient rain. Within a very short time the corn crop will begin to show the effect of the lack of rain, if it is not already beginning to do so. The most serious difficulty however, is the scarcity of stock water. Creeks are dry, as also are pools and ponds, springs are failing rapidly and there is a greater scarcity of water than has been known in years at this particular time of year.

CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS.

July 4th, Crab Orchard Springs was at its best. Early in the morning many guests at the Springs were called together on the large verandas and on the front of the grounds to hear a violin solo by Miss Nell, after which the Rev. Miller, an evangelist read a Psalm from the New Testament followed by a song which all joined in chorus, "My Country 'Tis of Thee", after which the entire company joined in The Lord's Prayer.

Dr. Martin, a Chautauqua lecturer then delivered a most patriotic address, which was thoroughly enjoyed from the oldest to the youngest, only such as one like Dr. Martin could give, carrying his audience to the highest to which is beautiful and divine, then gently lowering his well cultured voice with a most beautiful flow of language, to even amuse the many gay children who spotted the grounds and were decked in red, white and blue. At the close of the day the children with many colored lights sent fire works through the woods which were enjoyed even by those who were still coming at nine o'clock. There was a large ball given in honor of the occasion and the music was most excellent and patriotic.

Will Denny is a most excellent walker. He was tested at Crab Orchard Sunday when he walked 117 miles. When a lady asked him the cause of his nervous state of mind, he said, "I have been trying to find some one to feed my horse." She in her kind way blushing told him to please never walk so far again, come at once to me and I will feed your horse.

HON. A. O. STANLEY MAKES TELLING SPEECH To Immense Audience In Louisville.

Those who have been claiming that Hon. A. O. Stanley was inviting his friends out in the state to come to Louisville on the occasion of his speaking there on last Monday night in order to "swell the crowds," will doubtless be surprised to know that Mr. Stanley spoke to 2500 interested listeners on that occasion, and of that number there was perhaps not 25 from outside the city of Louisville.

Mr. Stanley's effort is conceded by press and people to be the best of his campaign and one of the ablest speeches ever heard in Louisville. There is scant doubt in the minds of any of those who heard him but that his speech will be prolific of much good to his cause.

He paid his respects to Ex-Gov. Beckham, one of his opponents, Percy Haley and Sam Shackelford, his followers, and Editor Dick Knott of the Post without the mincing of words, characterizing the latter as "a political renegade and harlot who exerted a contaminating influence politically, socially and morally, and whose relentless hate I wear as a badge of honor."

He deeply censured Beckham for his alliance with Knott, whom he charged with condoning the assassination of William Goebel, and holding up a copy of the Post exclaimed "and this is the vile sheet that has the impudence to dictate to the people of Kentucky whom they shall choose as their Senator."

He charged Beckham with cowardice upon the liquor question in that he played both ends against the middle as the time and the exigencies of the occasion demanded, with being a temperance man out in the state where such a position best suited his cause and then catering to the whiskey element in the city of Louisville.

We give below a few extracts of the arraignment of Mr. Beckham:

"Now Mr. Knott and Mr. Summers assure the people of Louisville that Mr. Beckham is the avowed and capable foe of State wide prohibition; that it was to him and to him alone the titillators of Kentucky owe their escape from wholesale destruction; and it is suggested with an implied and sinister menace, that if Mr. Beckham is not nominated to the Senate that their business shall pay the forfeit, not because of any injury to the public, but to satisfy the baffled rage of a disappointed politician."

"In a recent issue of this same Elizabethtown News Mr. Summers says: 'Some of the liquor people are trying to hold Beckham responsible for the Legislature. Then they ought to give him credit for defeating State-wide prohibition.'"

"Mr. Beckham's sponsors boast that he controlled the Senate, controlled it, I am told, two to one, and yet that Senate put the kibosh, to State-wide prohibition."

"Was the defeat of State-wide prohibition made the price of the support of the liquor interests of Louisville? Under which king do you serve, Bezonian? Speak or die! Are you wet or dry, Mr. Beckham? Are you for or against the Hobson resolution? Will you, if elected to the Senate, espouse or oppose national prohibition? Did you aid or did you assassinate State-wide prohibition for Kentucky?"

"Which Beckham is to go to the Senate—the Dr. Jekyll of Harry Sommers and Dick Knott in the cities, of the Mr. Hyde of inveterate and implacable hostility to the liquor interests in the dry counties?"

"Whether a majority of the people of Kentucky are prepared to abolish or to tolerate the manufacture of intoxicating liquor within the bounds of the Commonwealth, I do not know. It is difficult to determine the trend of public opinion until the public have spoken. Just how wet or just how dry is the State of Kentucky I do not pretend to say, but this I do know—Kentuckians wet and Kentuckians dry alike adore candor and courage. At one time they have followed the standard of prohibition and another they have demanded the highest measure of individual and personal liberty. This much I do know: differ as they may upon a moral issue, Kentuckians never have and never will rally to the standard of a coward!"

"Mr. Beckham, in a double deal and playing a dual role, has at this hour lost the confidence of the advocates of temperance and the respect of the opponents of prohibition."

Mr. Stanley's speech was loudly applauded throughout its length, and there was everything to indicate that his remarks were having a telling effect. The crowd which was conceded to be one of the most representative which ever greeted a political speaker in Louisville, was remarkable from the fact that not fifty people left the National Theater building, where the speaking was held, fully an hour and thirty minutes.

OLD FRIENDS IN THEATRICAL LINE IN LANCASTER ALL NEXT WEEK

The Williams Comedy Co., are to be in Lancaster all of next week. This company has an entirely new repertoire this year, with a complete change of scenery and a good play every night. They have been coming to Lancaster a number of years and they never fail to amuse and please large audiences, and their coming is looked forward to with much eagerness. "Billy" Pumphrey a local boy is ahead of the show, and usually remains with them during their week's stay in Lancaster, and the fact of Billy's connection with it adds to the popularity of the show in Lancaster.

LANCASTER BOY ASSISTING IN SOLVING HIGH COST Of Living Problem In Louisville.

Have you noticed the large advertisement of the chain of stores in Louisville called "the Quaker Maid stores"? These stores were established and are principally owned by Bob Hughes, formerly of Lancaster. He already has fifteen of these stores, and is establishing more at the rate of one a week, and will continue to do so until fifty are reached. These stores buy and sell strictly for cash, and are thus enabled to undersell their competitors. For instance the proprietors of these stores recently invested $30,000 in granulated sugar, and are retailing it to their customers at 43 cents per pound, cheaper than the retailer can now purchase it. Bob is kept busy riding from one store to the other, auditing and superintending the business.

R. S. BROWN THROWS IMMENSE STOCK OF GOODS ON MARKET AT REDUCED PRICES.

On next Saturday, July 11th, the immense stock of R. S. Brown will be placed on sale at greatly reduced prices. This stock is new and choice and consists of everything in the way of ladies and gentlemen's wearing apparel, and the prices are unheard of. It takes two entire pages of the Record this week to give a detailed description of this sale. As an attraction during the sale a handsome piano will be given away absolutely free to his customers.

Mr. Brown is a unique advertiser, always offering the novel to attract trade, and the courtesy with which those who enter his store are treated, and the fairness of his dealings, coupled with the splendid bargains to be obtained, has gained for him a goodly share of the patronage of this and adjoining counties.

LOCAL MASONS MEET ROYAL TREATMENT IN THE "STATE OF CASEY".

Inspector W. O. Rigney went to Liberty on last Friday taking with him the following Royal Arch Masons: J. W. Sweeney, A. T. Anderson, J. R. Haselden, R. L. Elkin, J. M. Farra, H. V. Bastin, W. R. Bastin, Henry Simpson, John A. Conn, F. P. Frisbie and George Smith Jr. The trip was made in the automobiles of Messrs. Haselden, Elkin and Walker. The team led nine candidates through the mysteries of Royal Arch Masonry. Part of the crowd returned home on Friday night, the remainder staying over Saturday for a days fishing in Green River. All of the party are loud in their praise of the splendid treatment accorded them in the capital of Casey. Senator Charles R. Montgomery was among the candidates, and that clever gentleman and Henry Thomas of the Casey county News left no stone unturned in their efforts to see that the visitors had a royal time while with them.

COLLAPSING ROOF CAUSES SERIOUS INJURY.

Steve Lewis, a well-known colored carpenter was seriously and perhaps fatally injured Wednesday afternoon when the roof of J. R. Haselden's Portico cohere upon which he was working collapsed. His head was cut by a concrete block upon which he fell and he is also suffering internal injuries. Mr. J. R. Haselden, Hughes Aldridge and Jerry Doty were on the roof at the same time but escaped unhurt.

W. J. ROMANS.

The streets are now oiled. If you don't believe it walk across the square with your white shoes on.

Saturday was a dull "glorious 4th" in Lancaster, and was scarcely noticeable save for the closing of the banks and postoffice.

The Garrard county wheat crop is an unusually good one, and is not confined to any particular locality. It varies all the way from 15 to 35 bushels to the acre.

Owing to the fact that considerable more space was covered than was anticipated, at least another car load of oil could have been used to advantage on the streets.

There is a great scarcity of garden sassa owing to the drought and what a few weeks since was a splendid prospect for summer consumption is now but a mass of shriveled herbage.

Help pay your part of the cost of oiling the streets, cheerfully, even if someone else does seem to have gotten a little more oil than you. You will reap the full benefit of every cent you pay.

Alas for "the plans of mice and men," the drought cut the blackberry crop, and instead of being plentiful and cheap as was anticipated, they take front rank among the list of high priced articles.

Union services began in the school building last Sunday and will continue throughout the heated season. In other places public announcement is being made for "gentlemen to leave their coats," and this announcement here would doubtless add considerable to the congregation.

PUBLICATION DISCONTINUED

The Baptist Reporter published at Georgetown Ky. with Harvey M. Estes as editor and proprietor, discontinues publication with the current issue. Harvey is a Garrard county boy and we are sorry that he did not find journalism sufficiently to his liking or sufficiently remunerative to continue the publication of the Reporter.

COLORED INSTITUTE.

The colored teachers of Boyle and Garrard county will hold their joint Teachers Institute in Lancaster during the week of July 20th. A competent instructor will be in charge and the same rule will apply as regards the white teachers, that all teachers who expect to teach in either of the counties participating are required to attend under penalty of forfeiture of their certificate.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

Mr. Sherman Sanders, a well known citizen of the Buckeye vicinity, was adjudged of unsound mind by a jury in the county court last week, and was committed to the Eastern Hospital for the insane at Lexington Ky.

STATE TREASURY REPORT.

The balance in the State Treasury at the close of the fiscal year. June 30 was $818,626.14; school fund, $638,027.37; general expenditure funds $194,882.26. The sinking fund showed a deficit of $14,283.48. Outstanding warrants $2,506,878.68; outstanding warrants May 31, $2,272,730.91.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN.

The Lancaster contingent of the Boy Scouts, who under Bro. Tiender as Scout Master, have been for a weeks "outing at 'Camp Daniel Boone'" returned on Monday afternoon, and all report a most enjoyable time.

The time was spent in rambling among the beautiful Kentucky river hills, swimming, fishing and various other sports dear to the boyish heart, and each member was reluctant to return home.

BETTER GET EM LINED.

The masculine element has been having considerable sport over the scarcity and thinness of texture of the ladies wearing apparel of late, but the ladies now have a splendid opportunity to get back at them. The "Palm Beach" suits much effected by gentlemen at this time are of about as thin texture as any article of feminine attire that we have seen lately, and some of the wearers here in Lancaster would do well to either have their nether garments lined or else do some extensive padding.

LANCASTER COLORED FAIR.

The Record is getting out neat and attractive catalogues for the Lancaster Colored Fair, which is to be held Aug. 6th, 7th and 8th. The premium list is an unusually liberal one, and these people say they expect to have the best exhibition they have ever given, and they usually give a good one. W. H. Harris is president, Clarence Beazley, vice president, Jerry Doty secretary and Wm. Denton Treasurer. The colored people of Lancaster have been giving a creditable exhibition for many years, thereby setting an example that might well be followed by the less progressive, though much more financially able whites.

An idle mind is the Devil's workshop. There is nothing too much idleness in Lancaster, and the natural sequence of idleness, crime, is naturally beginning to show itself. This must be stopped, the vagrant laws are to be rigidly enforced, the decree has gone forth, and those who are accustomed to loaf around the street, refusing every offer of work, will do well to heed this injunction, go to work or suffer the consequences. He who runs may read, and he who reads, if the injunction applies to him, will do well to run, else he will want to run and can't.

There has been considerable petty crime about Lancaster of late, and to come upon the streets and see the number of idle men and half grown men and boys loafing about, one scarcely wonders that there is no more.

Loafers begin to congregate in the early morning, noisy, cigarette smoking nuisances, they waken those who would sleep and disturb those who are working. Like Opie Read's flute player, they follow the shade throughout the day, to the disturbance and annoyance of all who come within the sound of their voices. Out in the country haying is in progress, threshing is going on and the threshermen are trying in vain to fill out their crews, corn is suffering for plowing, all kinds of work to be done, and no hands to do it. Ask one of these gentlemen of leisure to work for you, his answer will be "how much do you pay?", but with not the least idea of accepting labor at any price, then "I have been sick and am not able to do that kind of work." Very good, that excuse has been worn threadbare, and it will not be accepted in future, you will either go to work at honest wages, or else you will go to work for either the town or county at NO WAGES; choose you now which you will have.

Now mind you when we say you must go to work, we mean exactly what we say, no flimsy excuses are going to be accepted, you cannot bring in some man who will testify that you did a few hours or possibly a days work for him week before last, you must show conclusively that you are earning an honest livelihood by the sweat of your brow, else you will be convicted under the vagrancy laws and suffer the penalty.

The authorities have been making an investigation of the situation, they have observed closely and have the name of every man and half grown boy, both white and black, who constantly loafs about the streets, catching an odd job of a few hours every two or three days, and they have fully decided that these will either get down to actual work, or they will be placed where they will not be an eye sore to those who have to toil for a livelihood.

This is intended as a warning, the last one, heed it or ignore, the former for your own good, the latter at your peril, for surely the officers of the town and county are determined in this matter, they have been appealed to entirely too often, and they have determined to have a general cleaning up. The time of year is approaching when both town and county begin work on their streets and roads, each needs hands, do you wish to assist at so much per day and your board, the former to be applied upon a fine assessed against you for vagrancy, the latter down at Uncle Dave Ross' with a cell at night for your bed room? No, well get to work, the sooner the better for yourself.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The City Council held its regular monthly meeting on last Monday night. Owing to the absence of the city attorney, who was out of the city, and the further fact that the weather was extremely warm, only routine business was transacted. Current bills were vouchered, and further, business was postponed until their next meeting.

BIG WHEAT CROP.

There are perhaps more threshing rigs in operation in Garrard county than has been here before in years. A stranger coming into the county might easily think he was in the banner wheat county in the state of Kansas. A threshing outfit is to be seen on nearly every road and the cheerful toot of their whistles is constantly in your ears. All of which spells prosperity.

MR. HERRON BACK ON THE JOB.

Mr. Herron has sufficiently recovered from his recent accident as to be able to resume his duties. He so reported to the council at their regular meeting Monday night, and resumed his duties Tuesday morning. Mr. Herron had a very close call and his many friends are congratulating him upon his speedy recovery.

HE WILL LOAF NO MORE FOR AWHILE.

John Watson, a star member of Lancaster's gang of colored loafers, was held in the sum of $150, to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of misappropriating corn and oats. John occasionally drove the city cart and cared for the horse, while serving in this capacity he went to the Garrard Milling Co. and bought one barrel of corn and 4 bushels of oats and had it charged to the city. This was a duplicate of an order he purchased in like manner on June 18th, and the frequency of his orders aroused the suspicion of Councilman Gregory, who is a member of the firm from who the purchases were made, and he started an investigation. John when called upon to explain, said that after getting the last order he realized that he was purchasing too much and took part of it back to the mill, leaving it upon the platform. He was taken before Judge Arnold and this explanation did not prove satisfactory to his Honor, and John will remain with Uncle Dave until "Big Court".

NOTICE TO WATER

CONSUMERS.

All those indebted to the town for water will kindly come forward and settle at once, as we are in need of money to purchase the winter's supply of coal. A great many are in arrears for water and the Council has ordered me to take steps to collect this at once. The purchase of coal at this time means a great saving to the city, and I therefore most earnestly request that all in arrears settle at once.

L. E. Herron, Sup't.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of J. A. Doty, deceased, will present, same properly proven, to the undersigned executor or my attorney, L. L. Walker for payment. Those indebted to said estate, will call upon me or my attorney and settle same at once. J. A. Doty, Executor, of the 7-2-3t. will of J. A. Doty, deceased.

DO NOT WASTE THE CITY WATER.

You do not waste your cister water this dry weather do you? We would judge not. Well the city's supply of water is not inexhaustable, and while there is a goodly amount in the lake, more than is usually there at this period of the year, yet if it continues to be taxed as it has been, unless we have copious rains in the near future, we are liable to again face a water famine. In the event it gets too low, the water would be cut off and saved for emergencies, fires etc. This would cause a hardship on the majority of the citizens, and the best way to avoid this hardship is to use the water as economically as possible and try to make the amount hold out until the fall rains.

Now that the streets are oiled, there is no necessity for sprinkling them, in fact it is detrimental to the oiled streets to sprinkle them, and the cessation of so much sprinkling should materially curtail the amount of water used, and if we will be careful of our supply, there will be ample for all purposes.

PURCHASES "TWIN LEAF" FOR GOLDEN SEAL.

Mr. H. C. Bailey the senior member of the well known local firm of Bailey & Lewis, produce dealers, recently purchased a large consignment of what was represented to him to be, and what he believed to be "yellow root". Now genuine yellow root, or golden seal is worth $3.00 per pound, but "twin leaf", or a species of the dock family, which very much resembles it, is worth only as many cents per pound, and not in demand at that price. The purchase made by Mr. Bailey proved to be twin leaf, causing a discrepancy of $2.47 per pound as against Mr. Bailey, between the actual value of the commodity and what he paid for it. His bad judgment was not discovered until a firm to whom he had shipped it in Cincinnati, parcel post insured, value $35., had returned it to him with the information that it was "twin leaf" and not golden seal.

The party who sold it to Mr. Bailey at first claimed that he sold it for yellow root, and did not claim it was "the medicine yellow root, and that the roots he sold were actually yellow," which statement could not be denied. However, rather than go to law they settled the matter amicably with a small loss to Mr. Bailey.

Large shipment of "Palm Beach" suits just received. Jas. W. Smith.

TO SADDLE HORSE BREEDERS DANVILLE FAIR SADDLE COLT FUTURITY.

For foals of 1914 that are registered or eligible to register in Saddle Horse Breeders Association.

This Stake will be contended for at the Danville, Ky. Fair, August 5, 6 and 7, 1914.

Condition No. 1. On July 15th, the color, markings and sex of colt, name of sire and dam must accompany the first payment of $3.00.

Condition No. 2. On July 20th, an additional sum of $2.00 must be paid to the Secretary of the Association, which entitles the colt to show.

To the money derived from nominations of foals in this Stake, $25.00 will be added by the Association and will be divided between the four best foals; 50 per cent to first; 25 per cent to second; 15 per cent to third and 10 per cent to fourth, in full without discount.

STANLEY VIGOROUSLY REPLIES TO BECKHAM.

laws previously approved by Governor Beckham.

Then he throws off the mask, steps boldly and defiantly into the arena for these very interests into whose service he is presently to enter and sternly interdicts any additional legislation, declaring the new archaic law of 1900 "simple to remedy any wrong that may exist" and signifying any legislator with the temerity to oppose him "as a demagogue who would seek to blackmail a railroad company" and "as a felon deserving of the severest punishment." When I call the country's attention to this remarkable coincidence and the subsequent cozy corner provided upon his retirement from office by those most benefited by his ineffectual conduct, he admits approving the act, honestly incorporates the shameful message in his opening address, confesses having the railroad's coin in his tank, but accuses me of "an utter disregard for the truth" because I did not fully explain that, having served the railroads for seven years gratis, he took the first job he could get his hands on at half price, "mea culpa, mea maxima culpa."

I plead guilty. I have innocently, I assure him, led my hearers to believe that he was not so cheap a man as he has proved himself to be. In the future, I shall be less severe upon my distinguished opponent and more conciliatory with the L. and N., for it has treated me with indignity and Beckham with ingratitude.

Mr. Beckham says he accepted this employment because "I had no means upon which to live and support my family." In other words, HE NEEDED THE MONEY. I never charged him with spending the money on anybody else's family. I do not care a rap how he spends his money. It was the way he got it that interests me. A man with a wife and children usually spends his money on his family, whether he earns it or steals it.

Speaks at Request of Tobacco Growers.
But Mr. Beckham charges that "with his ostentatious declaration and vehement persecution" I have strode about over the state delivering myself of "inflammatory and incendiary harangues to the tobacco growers." A charge of this kind, emanating from one who is now the beneficiary and has the active support of the most influential of their arch enemy and who did not hesitate to line up with Thomas Fortune Ryan, the Moloch of the American Tobacco company, even against Bryan himself, need not be taken seriously. In this case I am rather amused at the absurdity of the charge than angered at its falsity.

I have campaigned five states at the request of the tobacco growers. I have spoken all over Kentucky, and these utterances speak for themselves. On Nov. 6, 1907, I delivered an address at Springfield, Tenn., more than 20,000 copies of which were printed by the Planters' Protective association and distributed in twenty counties throughout western Kentucky. I said: "I say to the freedom farmers of Robertson county that there is one thing you must respect—that is the law. . . . While God's law saved the world, it is his law that moves it. . . . Destroy law and turn your backs upon the courts of justice and no man's property is his own; no woman's honor is sacred. Your safety by night and your independence by day are dependent upon the law. . . . If I have no patience with mobs. . . . If you cannot win this fight in obedience to law, if you cannot win except by banding together to do violence to some men, for God's sake go burn your own barns and tobacco and disband. . . . And were I an officer of the law and you did hunt you down with the same fierce energy that I would prosecute a trust. You have no right to take the law in your own hands. The law is bigger and greater than you are."

In an address to 10,000 tobacco growers at Lexington on April 25, 1907, I discounted the claims of the tobacco growers, declaring: "The welfare not only of the tobacco growers, but the entire community, rests upon wholesome respect for the law."

On Jan. 25, 1907, I wrote a letter, published in the Morganfield Sun, in which I said: "As you probably know, I have at all times and under all circumstances unequivocally and strenuously opposed any resort to violence by the tobacco growers or anybody else."

This silly slander is as old as it is unfounded. It has been repeated time and again by the enemies of the American Tobacco company. Mr. Beckham, however, is the first Democrat ever pretending to be interested in farmers' organizations who has had the temerity to father or repeat it.

I find that the tobacco growers' associations in Kentucky are justly inclined to resent so groundless a statement. They regard it not without reason, as a reflection upon the men whose representatives I was at the time these addresses were delivered, as is evidenced by the following letter signed by the officers of the Stemming District association:

Henderson, Ky., March 23, 1914.
Hon. A. O. Stanley, Washington, D. C.:
Dear Sir—The Hon. J. C. W. Beckham in a speech delivered at Elizabethtown, on the 22nd inst., charged that you, among other things, had been guilty of commission and omission, had at divers times and places in the last few years in public addresses made statements calculated to incite to deeds of lawlessness.

This very grave and serious charge made by Mr. Beckham touches not only yourself, Mr. Stanley, but as well as a serious reflection on all the organized co-operating tobacco growers in half a hundred counties of southwestern Kentucky, for it is universal knowledge in the First, Second and Third congressional districts of Kentucky, wherein have been delivered a majority of your tobacco speeches since 1906, that said speeches have been made at the urgent invitation of thousands of cooperating farmers, the members of several tobacco associations, and the tobacco growers of every section of Kentucky since 1900-02. It follows then, if your speeches were incendiary and calculated to incite to deeds of lawlessness the cooperating farmers, they merit the censure of all law-abiding citizens.

In simple justice to Mr. Stanley we, the undersigned, the main executive officers of the Stemming Tobacco association since 1906, the year of his birth, deem it a simple duty to protest against the reckless and misleading statement of Mr. Beckham. The Stemming association, with a membership of 10,000 residing in the counties of Henderson, Webster, Union and Crittenden, extends to you on numerous occasions invitations to address its members, and in response you, weighted down as you were by numerous public duties, invariably responded by accepting. And in your speeches, while truthfully and severely arraigning the tobacco monopoly, you have sincerely conservative in counseling a faithful obedience to state and federal laws. Very sincerely yours,
WILLIAM ELLIOTT, Gen'l Mgr.
N. G. THOMPSON, Secy.

JAMES N. PANKS, Pres. Art. and Secy.

Accused of Prevarication.
Now as to Mr. Beckham's reiterated assertion that I am guilty of about fifty-seven varieties of prevarication. In support of this statement he pretends to quote my friend and colleague, the Hon. Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee. It is amazing that Mr. Beckham, in his misrepresentation of the very time he was deliberately and consciously guilty of the most inexcusable character of cheap and deliberate deception.

That a lie which is half a truth is of the blackest of lies.
That a lie which is all a lie may be met with a lie which is half a truth is a harder matter to fight.
The garbling of a statement in order to convey a meaning never intended is utterly indefensible. Fortunately, it is the kind of stupid deceit easily detected and exposed. In this instance there is ample proof that Mr. Beckham has extracted a single sentence from a paragraph, deliberately intended to convey a palpably false impression. Mr. Underwood not only did not charge me with a lack of truth or candor, but explicitly disavowed any such purpose. See how a plain tale will put him down. I quote from the Congressional Record of April 20, 1913, page 698:

Mr. Stanley. . . . In Birmingham, Ala., they not only work foreign labor, but they work slave labor. They work convicts in the mines.
Mr. Underwood—I DO NOT DESIRE TO CONTRADICT THE GENTLEMAN, but I must not justify to my own constituents. I do not know where the gentleman got his information, but it is absolutely untrue. Now, as to the gentleman's reference to their gathering men from the police courts, I want to say that he is mistaken in that, because the cases of convicts are not worked in the mines. The class of convicts who are worked in the mines are state convicts.

Mr. Stanley—The difference is this: The state convicts are worked in the mines by the state; convicts from the jails, convicted of misdemeanors, are worked by the tobacco companies. It has its own jail and its own guards over them.
Mr. Underwood—Oh, no! The gentleman is mistaken.

Mr. Stanley—This statement is made by Mr. Harrison of the Sage foundation. Mr. Underwood cannot yield any further. He says he wants to see it. I AM SATISFIED THAT THE GENTLEMAN THINKS HE IS CORRECTLY INFORMED, but I know he is not, and I think he is doing me an injustice.

Mr. Underwood in this very statement expressly disavows any intention to question my veracity or integrity, stating that, though misinformed, I am sincere. With that statement literally staring him in the face on the same page and in the same column with the garbled sentence, he makes this groundless charge. In a letter of March 28, 1914, Mr. Underwood states:

Washington, March 28, 1914.
My Dear Mr. Stanley—I am in receipt of your favor of the 23d inst., calling my attention to a controversy between Mr. Stanley and myself as shown in the Congressional Record, page 48, in which you stated, "I do not know where the gentleman got his information, but it is absolutely untrue by facts." Mr. Stanley's reference was to certain matters in my home city of Birmingham, Ala., about which he was clearly misinformed, but I wish to assure you that in making the statement that I did I in no way intended to reflect on Mr. Stanley's truthfulness or integrity. I have known Mr. Stanley for many years as a gentleman of high honor and unquestionable integrity. Very truly yours,
O. W. UNDERWOOD.

It was not necessary, however, for Mr. Underwood to have made any additional statement.

But was I indeed misinformed? Let the record speak for itself. I was discussing labor conditions existing in the mines of the steel corporation in Alabama, which I had investigated as chairman of the steel committee and described in its hearings (Vol. 4, pp. 2962-3).

Mr. Harrison of the Sage foundation testified as follows:
Mr. Beck—Did the 1,500 represent the state and county convicts?
Mr. Harrison—Together, yes.
The Chairman (reading)—"Any person or persons who play or engage in the playing of baseball or football or tennis or golf on Sunday in any public place where people resort for such purposes is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined from $25 to $50."

Mr. Harrison—That is true.
The Chairman—It is against the law to walk on the right of way of a railroad.
Mr. Harrison—I understand that men have been arrested and sentenced to prison for doing that in the past, but that the authorities have been a little more lenient in the last year or two because of one very unfortunate incident where a small boy or a young boy had been arrested for trespassing on the railroad track and sent up for fifty days, and he was sent to the mine. He knew nothing of mining and nothing of its dangers, and he got in the way of the car and had his leg cut off and was crippled for life for this very small offense. That has been, so far as I know, or less of a lesson, and they have been a little less strict in enforcing that law.

Mr. Young— . . . But does the state of Alabama permit that?

The Chairman—Yes, sir, to its eternal shame it permits it. I do not care whether it is Alabama, Maine or Michigan, if it oppresses and wrongs anywhere it will expose it. Crime and oppression have neither color nor locality so far as I am concerned.

The steel corporation admitted that these convicts were employed, just as I stated, on the floor of the house, and worse than all that, the reason given by the steel corporation was that the free miners were members of the United Mine Workers of America, that, unable to import strike breakers from the north, they utilized the convicts from the prisons of Birmingham. I felt that this condition deserved exposure and condemnation, and I exposed it and condemned it.

Kentucky has seldom produced a more accomplished, a more admirable and a more sensitively honorable gentleman than Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the present auditor of the treasury of the United States.

At my request Mr. Woolley went to Birmingham and made a personal investigation of the conditions existing there.

I am just in receipt of a letter which speaks for itself:

Robert Wickliffe Woolley's Letter.
Treasury Department,
Washington, March 23, 1914.

Hon. A. O. Stanley, House of Representatives.

Dear Mr. Stanley—Far be it from me to become involved in the contest which you and my esteemed relative and friend, Governor Beckham, are waging for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Kentucky, but in justice to you I feel that it is necessary to clear up one or two points concerning which Mr. Beckham has either been misinformed or is laboring under an erroneous impression.

A few days ago I read in the Lexington Herald a report of his Elizabethan speech, in which he quoted the Hon. Oscar W. Underwood to the effect that you had made a statement unwarranted by the facts. I recall the colloquy between you and the late Underwood in the employ of the Survey, who had testified before your committee concerning this very employment of convicts in the coal mines of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company in an iniquitous manner in which the unfortunate were treated. What you should have done was to ask John C. Oakley, president of the Alabama state board of convicts, who testified before your committee on Feb. 12, 1914, that not only was the corporation at Birmingham employing at that very time county convicts in their mines, but that the president of the company, Mr. George Gordon Crawford, had made strenuous efforts to get new in November, 1911, the contract with the state of Alabama for state convicts then about to expire.

Of course Mr. Underwood, for whom you and I both have the highest regard and esteem as a friend, was not fully informed when he undertook to challenge your statement on the floor of the house. Acting under general directions from you, I investigated fully the Steel corporation's operations at Birmingham and then went to Montgomery and inspected the contracts between the Tennessee Coal and Iron company and the state of Alabama.

Mr. Beckham seemed bent upon making light of the importance of the investigation of the Steel corporation. I hardly think he would do so were he a Kentuckian. Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, who stated to me not more than a month ago that in extending the relations between the industrial and the common carrier and the industrial of the interlocking directorate the work of your committee had been of inestimable value, said to me that he was proud of the fact that a Kentuckian had directed such an inquiry. Furthermore, Judge J. M. Dickinson, executive secretary of the American Bar association, attorney general of the United States in charge of the government's suit to dissolve the Steel corporation under the Sherman anti-trust law, has told me several times that but for this investigation that great suit would never have been brought to this occasion. He asked me to say to you that he would be glad to state over his signature just how greatly he esteemed your work.

Recently I have read in the Chicago Record-Herald that Mr. Charles R. Van Hise's much talked of "Concentration and Control." It is only necessary to note how often he refers to the testimony given by me at the hearing of local option, is of course, a perfectly legitimate one, and you are entitled to a very frank answer. I would have replied sooner had I not been prevented by imperative public engagements. I have explained my views to you in private, but have of course no objection to your making them public.

I am in favor of local option. I am a thorough believer in local self government and believe that every self governing community should have a solid unit and should have the right to control the matter of regulation or of the withholding of license.

But the questions involved are social and moral, not political, and are not susceptible of being made parts of a party program. Whenever they have been made the subject matter of party contests they have cut the lines of party organization and party action, and to the utter confusion of policy and of every other thing. They have thrown every other question, however important, into the background and have made constructive party action impossible for long years to come.

So far as I am concerned, therefore, I have never had an issue between political parties in this state. My judgment is very clear in this matter. I do not believe that party programs are of the slightest consequence to the political life of the state and of the nation ought to be thrust for long periods together by major and essentially nonpolitical, nonpartisan, moral and social in its nature. Very sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Did Not Dodge Vote on Webb Bill.

I am accused of "first dodging and then running away from the Webb bill." Mr. Beckham is either lacking in candor or is absolutely ignorant of the history of that bill. Before it was reported Mr. Webb appeared before the select committee, of which I was a member, and demanded its immediate consideration, and I then stated in detail my reasons for opposing the bill and upon a ye and nay roll call voted against it, which is a roll call of public record, available to Mr. Beckham. I was among the first to vote against it and not the last, for Mr. Beckham's own account of "charges of cowardice and evasion are improbable and absurd. If I had already declared the county unit bill unconstitutional, if I had boastfully voted in favor of the liquor interests at

Have Supported Temperance Legislation.
In nearly twelve years of service in the federal congress I have supported all measures demanded by the temperance people. I voted against the army canteen and against C. O. D. shipments of whiskey. Mr. Beckham talks about his fight imposing a tax of 14 cents a gallon upon rectified whiskey.

In 1906 I introduced an amendment to the pure food act, forbidding the manufacture of rectified whiskey without branding it as such, and spoke in favor of that amendment. When Mr. Beckham opposes a little tax of 14 cents a gallon he is a hero, and when I attempt to abolish the business I am a scoundrel and a tool. My whole life as a public servant stamps as utterly false the charge that I voted against the Webb bill from fear of the liquor interests. You have before you the same proof that Clay was a slave to the abolitionists, that Benton was a traitor to the people of Missouri and that Davis was the secret emissary of the north that is here offered as proof of my subservience to the whisky trust.

On June 8, 1836, there was introduced in the Twenty-fourth congress a resolution almost identical in character and purpose with the Webb-Kenyon bill. The resolution was intended to prevent the shipment of abolition literature into the slave states. At that time it was unlawful to sell or expose for sale any book or pamphlet attacking the institution of chattel slavery, the only difference between these two bills being that one was intended to prevent the shipment of objectionable literature into a state prohibiting its sale, Benton, Davis, Webster and Clay all refused to support the resolution on the ground that it was palpably unconstitutional. Mr. Webster with the same right to charge Webster with prevention, Benton with cowardice, Clay with subservience to the abolitionists of the north and Jefferson Davis with treason to the southern states to whom he gave the best energies of his life and for whom he endured the cares of office, the perils of war and the pain and privations of imprisonment.

Justice Neil on Webb Bill.
Mr. Beckham says, "Of course it is constitutional, and no court of competent or final jurisdiction will ever decide it otherwise." The courts of many states have repeatedly declared this act unconstitutional or improper.

Sixteen days before he blindly assured us that no court ever had or ever would question the constitutionality of the Webb-Kenyon bill, in the city of Nashville and in the prohibition state of Tennessee, the chief justice of the supreme court of the state, in the case of Walter O. Pales versus the Southern Express company said:

"The general contention of the complainant may be thus summarized: That certain provisions of the act are void under the constitution of the United States because they regulate interstate commerce of a traffic which is not interstate commerce. . . . THE ACT OF CONGRESS KNOWN AS THE WEBB-KENYON ACT has no application to the case at hand IN ANY EVENT THAT ACT IS VOID."

"We were," says Justice Neil, "UNABLE TO PERCEIVE ANY SOUND ANSWER TO THIS CONTENTION." Equally well established is the proposition that the right to send liquors from one state to another and the act of sending the same is interstate commerce, the regulation whereof has been committed by the constitution of the United States to congress, and hence that a state law which denies such a right or substantially interferes with or hampers the same is in conflict with the constitution of the United States."

Wilson's Cabinet on Webb Bill.
The many men believe that Woodrow Wilson would not have his office family, would intrust with grave and responsible duties involving the security and honor of his party and his country, a cowardly and subservient tool of the liquor interests? Mr. Beckham has the same right to charge the president with packing his cabinet with the tools of the whisky trust as he has to charge me with being such an emissary. Three members of the federal congress who voted on this measure are not the tools of the whisky trust, and out of the three two of them voted against it because they believed it to be unconstitutional. Hon. W. C. Redfield, secretary of commerce and labor, and Hon. A. S. Burleson, now postmaster general of the United States, voted just as I did, which I did and for the same reason that actuated me.

The case of Monticello, with the audacity of genius, turned his back upon all the precedents and the spin fallacies of 400 years of civilization. He took a whip, a simple citizen, endowed him with inherent and inalienable rights, clothed him with all power and authority, crowned him with a halo, and the trembling monarchs of the world cowered before the towering creation of this mighty American.

This plan, original and sublime in its simplicity, crystallized in a law, became the priceless legacy of succeeding generations, "the sheet anchor of our liberties," the constitution of the United States.

The constitution is the only enduring barrier to the ambition of rulers, the armor of courts, the execution of popular assemblies wayed by the passions and prejudice of the hour. It is the sanctuary to which endangered liberty must flee, and the lawbreaker, above all, is a sworn and solemnly ordained priest in that sacred temple. It cannot be endangered by bayonet thrust or cannon shot. It is preeminent, it is not to be doubted, but I shall never give my assent to any act which may degrade or destroy this holy object. I do not doubt, but I do not suspect, I did not fear. I knew the unconstitutionality of that act.

I knew when casting that vote that I would be exposed to the tender mercies of shrewd demagogues, would be denounced as the abettor of lawlessness and demagogues. But for one, I was not prepared to commit perjury because it was popular. Not for all the honors and emolument of office will I endure the pious self abuse, not go out into the solitude of night and gaze into my own ghastly and shrinking soul, knowing full well that in order to hold office I have caused to debase it, in order to a little longer serve my country I have lately betrayed it.

Let him not attempt to deny the truth of this statement by vilifying its author, for it is underwritten by the very convention he arrogantly and foolishly claims to have controlled.

The committee on credentials for some inexplicable reason did not present this fraudulent delegation, and then was witnessed in that body a scene which has no peer or parallel in the history of Democratic conventions in Kentucky. A delegate from the floor of the convention called up the minority report, and so general was the knowledge of the outrageous conduct of Mr. Beckham and his henchmen, as graphically described in the Louisville Times, that the convention by a decisive majority repudiated the report of the committee on credentials, and in anger and disgust, was preparing to literally spew Mr. Beckham and his crooked allies out of its mouth.

Then it was that so called "followers of the saloon interests and Mr. Stanley," for the sake of party harmony and in very pity for the despicable plight in which Mr. Beckham found himself, came to his assistance. Then it was that Bob Franklin, Ben Marshall, myself and others rushed to the stage and earnestly pleaded with the outraged delegates not to kick the man down the stairs, who at this time would assume to have been their idol and their hero.

McCreary Puts County Unit Plank in Platform.
The very men who put the county unit plank in the Democratic platform, like the real leaders of the temperance cause in the Kentucky legislature, have eternally branded the hypocritical leadership of Mr. Beckham as an imposture and a sham.

That plank was written in the platform because a majority of the delegates felt that the candidate's position should be in accord, and Governor McCreary, having insisted that it should be included in the report of the committee in resolution, his wishes in the matter were respected and obeyed. Mr. Beckham's self lauded harangue before that body, "like the flowers that bloom in the spring, had nothing to do with the thing at all."

Mr. Beckham's statement that I have ever attempted to defend my position in that convention or that it ever needed a defense is, in the words of Oscar Underwood, "absolutely unwarranted by facts," and I never said anything that would warrant anybody with a modicum of intelligence in making such an assertion.

I have always believed in local option, and I have never hesitated to say so. Every community should have the right to decide whether alcoholic liquors should be vended in it or not, and when the licensed sale has been prohibited I unhesitatingly approve the rigorous enforcement of the law against those petty miscreants known as bootleggers and blind tigers.

Wilson Favors Local Option.
President Wilson has discussed this subject with such candor and frankness that I am willing to unhesitatingly and absolutely commend and accept every sentence and every syllable of that utterance as the exact and accurate expression of my views upon this vexed question.

My Dear Mr. Shannon—The question asked in your letter of April 27 about my attitude toward the important question of local option is, of course, a perfectly legitimate one, and you are entitled to a very frank answer. I would have replied sooner had I not been prevented by imperative public engagements. I have explained my views to you in private, but have of course no objection to your making them public.

I am in favor of local option. I am a thorough believer in local self government and believe that every self governing community should have a solid unit and should have the right to control the matter of regulation or of the withholding of license.

But the questions involved are social and moral, not political, and are not susceptible of being made parts of a party program. Whenever they have been made the subject matter of party contests they have cut the lines of party organization and party action, and to the utter confusion of policy and of every other thing. They have thrown every other question, however important, into the background and have made constructive party action impossible for long years to come.

So far as I am concerned, therefore, I have never had an issue between political parties in this state. My judgment is very clear in this matter. I do not believe that party programs are of the slightest consequence to the political life of the state and of the nation ought to be thrust for long periods together by major and essentially nonpolitical, nonpartisan, moral and social in its nature. Very sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Did Not Dodge Vote on Webb Bill.

I am accused of "first dodging and then running away from the Webb bill." Mr. Beckham is either lacking in candor or is absolutely ignorant of the history of that bill. Before it was reported Mr. Webb appeared before the select committee, of which I was a member, and demanded its immediate consideration, and I then stated in detail my reasons for opposing the bill and upon a ye and nay roll call voted against it, which is a roll call of public record, available to Mr. Beckham. I was among the first to vote against it and not the last, for Mr. Beckham's own account of "charges of cowardice and evasion are improbable and absurd. If I had already declared the county unit bill unconstitutional, if I had boastfully voted in favor of the liquor interests at

Have Supported Temperance Legislation.
In nearly twelve years of service in the federal congress I have supported all measures demanded by the temperance people. I voted against the army canteen and against C. O. D. shipments of whiskey. Mr. Beckham talks about his fight imposing a tax of 14 cents a gallon upon rectified whiskey.

In 1906 I introduced an amendment to the pure food act, forbidding the manufacture of rectified whiskey without branding it as such, and spoke in favor of that amendment. When Mr. Beckham opposes a little tax of 14 cents a gallon he is a hero, and when I attempt to abolish the business I am a scoundrel and a tool. My whole life as a public servant stamps as utterly false the charge that I voted against the Webb bill from fear of the liquor interests.

On June 8, 1836, there was introduced in the Twenty-fourth congress a resolution almost identical in character and purpose with the Webb-Kenyon bill. The resolution was intended to prevent the shipment of abolition literature into the slave states. At that time it was unlawful to sell or expose for sale any book or pamphlet attacking the institution of chattel slavery, the only difference between these two bills being that one was intended to prevent the shipment of objectionable literature into a state prohibiting its sale, Benton, Davis, Webster and Clay all refused to support the resolution on the ground that it was palpably unconstitutional. Mr. Webster with the same right to charge Webster with prevention, Benton with cowardice, Clay with subservience to the abolitionists of the north and Jefferson Davis with treason to the southern states to whom he gave the best energies of his life and for whom he endured the cares of office, the perils of war and the pain and privations of imprisonment.

Justice Neil on Webb Bill.
Mr. Beckham says, "Of course it is constitutional, and no court of competent or final jurisdiction will ever decide it otherwise." The courts of many states have repeatedly declared this act unconstitutional or improper.

Sixteen days before he blindly assured us that no court ever had or ever would question the constitutionality of the Webb-Kenyon bill, in the city of Nashville and in the prohibition state of Tennessee, the chief justice of the supreme court of the state, in the case of Walter O. Pales versus the Southern Express company said:

"The general contention of the complainant may be thus summarized: That certain provisions of the act are void under the constitution of the United States because they regulate interstate commerce of a traffic which is not interstate commerce. . . . THE ACT OF CONGRESS KNOWN AS THE WEBB-KENYON ACT has no application to the case at hand IN ANY EVENT THAT ACT IS VOID."

"We were," says Justice Neil, "UNABLE TO PERCEIVE ANY SOUND ANSWER TO THIS CONTENTION." Equally well established is the proposition that the right to send liquors from one state to another and the act of sending the same is interstate commerce, the regulation whereof has been committed by the constitution of the United States to congress, and hence that a state law which denies such a right or substantially interferes with or hampers the same is in conflict with the constitution of the United States."

Wilson's Cabinet on Webb Bill.
The many men believe that Woodrow Wilson would not have his office family, would intrust with grave and responsible duties involving the security and honor of his party and his country, a cowardly and subservient tool of the liquor interests? Mr. Beckham has the same right to charge the president with packing his cabinet with the tools of the whisky trust as he has to charge me with being such an emissary. Three members of the federal congress who voted on this measure are not the tools of the whisky trust, and out of the three two of them voted against it because they believed it to be unconstitutional. Hon. W. C. Redfield, secretary of commerce and labor, and Hon. A. S. Burleson, now postmaster general of the United States, voted just as I did, which I did and for the same reason that actuated me.

The case of Monticello, with the audacity of genius, turned his back upon all the precedents and the spin fallacies of 400 years of civilization. He took a whip, a simple citizen, endowed him with inherent and inalienable rights, clothed him with all power and authority, crowned him with a halo, and the trembling monarchs of the world cowered before the towering creation of this mighty American.

This plan, original and sublime in its simplicity, crystallized in a law, became the priceless legacy of succeeding generations, "the sheet anchor of our liberties," the constitution of the United States.

The constitution is the only enduring barrier to the ambition of rulers, the armor of courts, the execution of popular assemblies wayed by the passions and prejudice of the hour. It is the sanctuary to which endangered liberty must flee, and the lawbreaker, above all, is a sworn and solemnly ordained priest in that sacred temple. It cannot be endangered by bayonet thrust or cannon shot. It is preeminent, it is not to be doubted, but I shall never give my assent to any act which may degrade or destroy this holy object. I do not doubt, but I do not suspect, I did not fear. I knew the unconstitutionality of that act.

I knew when casting that vote that I would be exposed to the tender mercies of shrewd demagogues, would be denounced as the abettor of lawlessness and demagogues. But for one, I was not prepared to commit perjury because it was popular. Not for all the honors and emolument of office will I endure the pious self abuse, not go out into the solitude of night and gaze into my own ghastly and shrinking soul, knowing full well that in order to hold office I have caused to debase it, in order to a little longer serve my country I have lately betrayed it.

All Around The Farm

MONEY IN ANGORA.

Mohair Producing Goat Can Be Profitably Raised on American Farms. (Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Angora goat, although it needs attention, could be raised on any American farm, states an expert of the department of agriculture. In Montana the flocks face the heavy snowfalls with equanimity as long as a dry place is provided for them at night, and, though the heat in the southwest frequently makes it necessary to shear twice a year in order to prevent shedding, it does not otherwise prevent the health of the flocks. High land is the native home of all goats, and pure water is also essential in connection with their production.

Although nearly every state in the Union now possesses its flocks, the southwest and the northwest are especially well adapted to the industry, in particular the large areas recently logged off in the northwest. There the Angora not only thrives itself, but helps to clear away the brush. Thus it is often said that the Angora works and pays for its board at the same time.

It is paying more and more, for the value of the fleece, or mohair, is increasing steadily. The price of course varies with the quality, the very best fleeces bringing on an average from 12 to 55 cents a pound. The weight of a fleece has a very wide range, but in 1909 the average for Oregon was found to be 3.7 pounds and for Texas 1.55. On account of the greater heat, however, and the damage of shedding, Angoras in the southwest are frequently shorn twice a year, a fact which must be taken into consideration in all calculations.

Six inches is the shortest length of fleece usually desired, and because of shearing twice a year much Texas and New Mexico mohair falls below this standard. Where the fleece is allowed to grow for twelve months the average length is ten inches, and in the best flocks it is not unusual to get fifteen to twenty inches. Ramo, the sweepstakes buck at the El Paso show in 1910, is an example of what is possible. His fleece weighed eighteen pounds, measured twenty and three-quarter inches in length and sold for $115. Such fleeces are not, of course, the product of ordinary commercial conditions. It implies a considerable amount of care and personal attention.

The birth rate of Angoras is approximately 65 per cent, but in well managed flocks this has risen on occasions as high as 120 per cent. Since the kids are not hardy it is obvious that this means skill and industry during the breeding season; otherwise the management of Angoras does not differ greatly from that of sheep.

They will feed with cattle and sheep, and, though in some danger of being kicked, with horses also. As a matter of fact, however, the goat prefers a certain amount of rough pasture and is particularly happy when clearing up brush land. On very rough land the danger of injury to the fleece must, however, be kept in mind.

Curing Cowpea Hay.

Cowpeas are cut and cured about the same as clover or alfalfa hay. It is a common practice to let the cowpeas remain in the swath from twenty-four to thirty-six hours before raking and curing. It is the practice of some to run a tedder over the field as soon as the upper leaves have withered. If left in the swath for thirty-six hours and then put into cocks, in favorable weather the hay will be ready to put into the barn in two or three days. Two or three hours before hauling to the barn the cocks should be opened and exposed to the sun and air.

Keep the Plow Bright.

Take care of your plow. When you are through with your day's work cover the metal parts instead of allowing them to remain exposed to the damp night air and rust until next morning. When you store your plow in the shed rub a little grease of any kind over the moldboard, share and land side. This will effectively prevent rust, and the grease will be rubbed off as soon as you put the plow in the ground again.

Egyptian Cotton Seed.

The federal horticultural board has issued a notice to all cotton mills and especially those in the south in destroying by burning all seed that may be found in bales of imported Egyptian cotton. These seed are likely to contain the larvae of the pink bollworm, which is very destructive to American cotton.

No Civilized Man Wants to Live Where There Are No Churches—Go to Church!

GO TO CHURCH!

The church is the best institution the world has ever known from every standpoint—moral, economic and political. It has changed the world from HEATHENISM TO CIVILIZATION, from SLAVERY TO FREEDOM, from MIGHT TO RIGHT, from DARKNESS TO LIGHT, from MISERY TO HAPPINESS. Compare the conditions prevailing in heathen lands with those of Christian countries; the forms of government in the dark ages to those of the Christian lands today.

CAN ANY ONE BELIEVING IN GOD GIVE ANY REASON FOR NOT GOING TO CHURCH? THE CHURCH STANDS FOR THE PURITY AND SANCTITY OF THE HOME, THE PURITY AND RECTITUDE OF PERSONAL LIFE, THE HIGHEST MORALS, THE BEST LAWS. IT STANDS FOR JUSTICE, RIGHTNESS AND GOOD GOVERNMENT. IT IS THE GREAT INSTIGATOR AND PATRON OF ALL TRUE BENEVOLENCE. SKEPTICISM NEVER FOUNDED AN ASYLUM. THE CHURCH, NOT INFIDELITY, HAS FOUNDED THE GREAT ELEMOSYNARY INSTITUTIONS OF THE LAND.

The value of the church cannot be estimated. No civilized man wants to live where there is no church. He wants it for its influence, if for nothing else. Take the church out of any town or city and the citizen will take himself out. Take the church out and all evil will prevail, and from an economic standpoint property becomes worthless.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH IS TO SAVE THE WORLD. DOES IT MERIT ANYTHING AT THE HANDS OF ITS PRO-FESSED FOLLOWERS? IF SO, LET US STAND BY IT AND ATTEND ITS SERVICES. IT IS A DUTY AS WELL AS A PLEASURE. INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY WILL NOT DOWN. LET US ASSUME IT CHEERFULLY AND RESPOND VALIANTLY.

Be sure to GO TO CHURCH next Sunday!

GO EVERY SUNDAY!

An Angling Story.

While fishing for pike in the River Waveney recently, Mr. E. Norman of the Brockish (Norfolk) Angling society hooked a fish, but his line broke just above the swivel, to which the hook is attached. Throwing in again, he hooked, as he thought, another pike, but found that the lost swivel, bearing the hooked pike, had caught in his new set of hooks. He was thus able to land his original catch.

Real Hard Luck.

Our notion of hard luck is to be overworked on a government job.—Athol Globe.

Merely a Small Matter.

"Had you been quarreling with your husband?" a witness was asked at Old Hill. "No," was the reply. "I only hit him with the poker."

Diversified Diet Necessary.

A normal diet is a diversified one. Only by such a diet can a human being obtain all the multitudinous substances which his body needs.

Four Precepts.

Four precepts to live by: To break off old customs; to shake off spirits ill-disposed; to meditate on youth; to do nothing against one's genius.—Hawthorne.

Ostriches, Please, Note.

"They say that when an ostrich is surprised he hides his head in the sand." "I wish he'd hide his tail there!" remarked a man who had just settled his wife's millinery bill.

Useful Spirit.

Efforts to be permanently useful must be uniformly joyous—a spirit of sunshine—graceful from very gladness, beautiful because bright.—Carlyle.

HOW TO BEAUTIFY THE HAIR.

A Simple and Inexpensive Home Method.

If your hair is not pretty: if it is losing its color, too dry, matted, falling out or if the scalp itches and burns, you can overcome all of these conditions by using Parsian Sage, which supplies every hair need. It soaks right in to the hair roots, stimulating them and furnishing the nourishments that is needed for the hair to grow not only long and heavy, but fluffy, soft lustrous and gloriously radiant.

You can get a bottle of this inexpensive, yet delightful and helpful hair tonic from R. E. McRoberts or at any drug store. Improvement begins with the very first application. Besides stopping the scalp irritation it removes every bit of dandruff. The use of this unequalled hair tonic will surely give your hair new life and beauty.

Mr. Hinds holds a lucrative railroad position in Nebraska.Mrs. D. M. Lackey was hostess of a large reception Saturday from 5 to 7 P. M., the invitation list including 75 guests. The well appointed function was the more attractive as it was a "Fourth of July Celebration", the National colors being observed both in the decorations and the table appointments; dainty American flags were also bestowed as souvenirs while the tri-colored gleamed and glowed in every conceivable manner of embellishment.
Little Misses Johnetta Farra and Emma Goodloe Gregory were appointed to welcome the guests while the receiving line and committee of entertainment included prominent members and officers of the club; Misses Nancy Walker and Martha Kavanaugh served at the punch bowl while Mrs. J. W. Sweeney and Mrs. L. N. Miller enhanced the enjoyment by singing two verses of a patriotic song; the latter part of the evening was spent among the palms and flowers of the attractive yard, tete-tete tables being grouped in the open for the serving of the refreshments. The tri-color scheme of "red, white, and blue" was most impressively designated even in the ices and confections while the brightness of "Old Glory" was markedly in evidence throughout the entire entertainment thus making Mrs. Lackey's "Fourth of July Function" a most successful and appropriate social affair.

RAISING POULTRY.

Both the Intensive and Colony Systems are Excellent.

There are two popular ways in which to raise poultry, the intensive system and the colony system. The first of these aims to save space and accomplishes this purpose. Long stationary houses are used. It is easier, however, to keep the birds healthy and to reproduce the stock under the second system.

Under the colony system the birds are allowed free range, the houses

(Type in use at United States government farm, Beltsville, Md.)

which hold about 100 hens each, being placed from 200 to 250 feet apart, so that the stock will not kill the grass.
This system may be adapted to severe winter conditions by drawing the colony houses together in a convenient place at the beginning of winter, thus reducing the labor during the cold months. The first system is more suited for hens used solely for the production of market eggs than for those used to breed stock.

Fences mean an outlay of money,
and this outlay is more or less continuous, as they must be maintained after being installed. There should be as few fences as possible dividing the lots and the yards, as land can be kept sweet more easily if not fenced, and fresh, sweet land is a valuable asset in poultry raising.

On good soil a greenward may be kept up by allowing 200 to 250 square feet of land per bird. This means 217 or 174 birds per acre. More space is necessary on poor or light land. A larger number of fowls is usually kept to the acre where double yards are used and the land is frequently cultivated. Plymouth Rocks and the other heavy meat breeds in small yards require fences five to six feet high, while a fence six to seven feet high is necessary for Leghorns. The upper two feet of the fence for the latter may be inclined inward at an angle of 30 degrees or a strand of barbed wire may be used on top of the regular wire to keep them confined. It is also sometimes necessary to clip the wing feathers of one wing of those birds that persist in getting out. A board or strip along the top of the fence is not advisable. Fences will often be over such an arrangement.
